

1/3/72

Dear Harold,
What stale
poetism!

I discussed The Robbman
material with R.P.

I gather that he is a phatoge.

As Dostoevsky said of Gogol: "We are all the children of his Overcoat."

This statement reflects
your position among the critics.

I wish Mr. R. well albeit I still feel that only his age can attract any attention on the subject. Of course, there is no reflection on his work or P.M. either but only my impression of the Commercial situation.

Tiger has greater
market potential than Agent
Oswald.

The tragedy is that the original Camp put it all together.

Summers J
